victory that will do us good thoughout the State if you will only put your shoulders to the wheel.

WE allinded yesterday to the proposed trempt of the disaffected people in Jef-erson county to hold an election under the laws of Virginia on the pretense and the laws of Virginia on the pretense and under the claim that they have the right and that it is their duty to do so. They take upon themselves the decision of the mooted question whether Jefferson county is or is not a part of West Virginia. It sults their predilections to decide that she is not, and therefore they meet in public assembly, appoint committees, and in disregard and defiance of the officers and laws of the State of West Virginia, proceed to arrange for an election on the 12th, to-morrow. Mr. Andrew Hunter, a returned rebel, and one of the leading and most responsible sinners connected with the rebellion in the Valley, heads the movement, having presided as chairman of the meeting beld at Charlestown on the 23d ult. In the true Virginia style a vast amount of words are adduced before the meeting to show that what they propose to do is all right, and that no person can in fairness except to their idea of choosing whether they will live in the old or new State. The oily gammon of Mr. Hunter flowsvery smoothly, and no doubt pleased his rebel friends. under the claim that they have the right all amendments proposed to the organ-ic law of the State, in the legislature, gers of that sort. It has also served in the matter of the present proposed amendment to give us time to consider, from events, how far such an amend ment may be necessary. We are all drifting along thus far, both in a naarming along inus mr, both in a na-tional and State point of yiew. We are trying to ascertain what will be a proper policy. As yet we are no little in the fog and the dark. We shall be wiser by the meeting of the next legislature. Courress will have been to Congress will have been in session several weeks. All the Southern States will have held elections. A southern public opinion will have developed itself. By the aid of these lights we shall be better prepared to say how far we ought to go in disfranchising rebels. We can determine whether to give them a term of years or send them up for life, as things look now it will be unsafe to let them do any voting for the present. The spirit of those at the head of the refractory movement in Jefferson coon. Congress will have been in session sev refractory movement in Jeneral and the ty, is the spirit of most if not all the returned rebels. Any one can see the danger of allowing such men, in conjunction with their sympathizers, to control the ballot box. Mr. Lamb forenav and delineated this danger in his speech in the Legislature least February when he said that he "always contemparated that is would be necessary for the latter of the said that it would be necessary for least a West Virginia, as soon as command. refractory movement in Jefferson coun-ty, is the spirit of most if not all the

this year. Some people are sanguine enough to believe that a change of heart is going on up there. In Madison we had pretty near a stand off at the Presidential election, how will it be this year? We hope to hold our own at least, and if our many good men in the 2d and 7th wards will only do their full duty, we shall do better still.

Union friends in all the townships and in all the wards! Do you appreciate that we are now within two weeks of the election? We appeal to you not to be remiss. Hold your little caucuses and committee meetings nightly. Leave nothing undone. We can achieve a victory that will do us good thoughout the State if you will only put your shoulders to the wheel.

THE immense business doing in New England cotton mills is shown by the fact that several of them have lately sent agents to England for additional operatives, having found it impossible to procure enough in this country to meet the demand. The Boston papers announce that one vessel has already arrived at that port with over two hun-

fore the meeting to show that what they propose to do is all right, and that no person can in fairness except to their dots of choosing whether they will live in the old or new State. The oily garmon of Mr. Hunter flows very smoothly, and no doubt pleased his rebel friends and neighbors very much. But he will find that what he proposes to do requires something more than words, and that the administration of this State does not intend to play the role of James Backhanan over again, by whining and protesting against what is being done, and yet doing nothing to prevent it. If Mr. Andrew Hunter and his colleagues persist in their seditions movement, they will be dealt with summarily. On that point they can bet their money. Gov. Bereman will not play with them gingerly. If the John Brown gallows has been taken down at Charlestown another one can be put up. In the meantime, as we are glad to know. Gen. Emory has repaired to the scene of the proposed election, and he will take charge of the belot-boxes which Hunter and his friends think of opening to-morrow. The amendment has correspondent says that the view of another passage to make through the gambling is practiced extensively legislature next January, before it can be submitted to the people at the polis. He says that in Fifth averney, and By a wise provision of our constitution fourteenth and Twenty-third streets, Fourteenth and Twenty-third streets, there are often parties of ladies from which the opposite sex are sternly excluded, where the fair gamesters play must pass that body twice, at two different sessions, and then afterwards until daylight, for large stakes; and it come before the people for final ratification or rejection. In this way the most dispassionate consideration is assured for every proposed amendment. Two different legislatures, and finally the people, must pass upon it.

Much that has been written about the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting rebels from voting, has been written as if it. was to be passed upon finally this month, instead of being, as it is, only on its second reading. It was altogether premuture to shoot at a mark so far off. We may be sure that there is very little danger of an unconstitutional law running the guantlet of two sessions of the legislature, and afterwards, the popular vote at the polis. The provision in our constitution referred to was intended to meet all dangers of this sort. It has also served in the malter of the most of the peat that resolution in order to give seats to members who cannot take the cath. This, I believe, answers your first question.

2. Effects on Virginis if she should not have representation in the next Congress. Not that a representation will do her so much good, but it will be a great cult to the State if she is not represented. All our interests will suffer if we are unrepresented.

3. With reference to the selection of members to the General Assembly who are ineligible. It is to be hoped that none such will be elected. Should they be, the Constitution of the State must be repealed before they can take their seats, and, as the question will be eatirely within the control of the Legisfature, that body may defer action till the close of its session, and thus deprive the counfile sending such delegates as representatives.

But has it not the appearance of perprive the counties sonding such delegations are represented by the law of grants as represented by the law of congress, cannot take their seats? And so in regard to the General Assembly. The first act to be done by them when they arrive at the Siste or National Capital will be to demand the repeal of certain laws before they can take their seats? It this class of me on make their seats? It this class of me of marces will conclude that the representative is a type of the people, and will be likely to congress the members of Congress will conclude that the representative is a type of the people, and will be inkely in the reject them.

There is no doubt but able delegations can be elected both to the Congress of the United States and to the General Assembly of Virginia who are eligible.

We learn that the Virginia House has also changed hands, Mr. A. C. Duval having provided himself with a farm in Wayne county, Ohio. ONE of the banks at New York inter ing house tried to discredit the national currency last week by offering it for sale at thirty cents per thousand dis-count. A neighboring bank bought a hundred thousand at that rate, and of-fered to take all that could be brought them at the same rate, but there was no more for sale; so the only result was that the attempt to injure the credit of the new currency cost thirty dollars and falled.
